Praeses Names Chris Costakis Vice President of Information Technology

SHREVEPORT, LOUISIANA – July 10, 2012 – Praeses, a national leader in providing trusted information management, technology consulting, and software development, today announced the promotion of Chris Costakis to the position of Vice President of Information Technology.

Since joining Praeses in 2007, Costakis has held the position of IT Director, where he focused on the daily operations and oversight of Praeses' technology infrastructure. He was also responsible for providing support and technical guidance to local businesses through various IT and networking contracts.

"This is an exciting time for Praeses," stated Frank Auer, Chief Executive Officer at Praeses. "As we continue to grow our business Chris' expertise will be instrumental in assessing the technology needs of our company and the companies that we work with on a national and global level. His knowledge, experience, and leadership will continue to guide our talented team of technology professionals while supporting our corporate mission."

Originally from Indiana, Costakis came to Praeses from IBM where he was an IT Specialist, responsible for business consulting with a focus on solution implementation on Microsoft and Linux platforms.

He attended Purdue University and graduated with a degree in Computer Technology.
