New Leadership at Praeses Positions the Company for Long-Term Growth

Leading Provider of Software and Services to Government and Commercial Customers Announces Appointment of New President

SHREVEPORT, LOUISIANA – December 13, 2017 – Praeses, a national leader in innovative software development and services, announces that Adam Rosen has joined the company as its President. Rosen brings extensive experience leading the translation of innovative technology into highly valued goods and services for Industry and Government.

Kempton Schwab wraps up a 22-year career with Praeses, where he played an integral role in developing product and service offerings, generating and managing key customer relationships, helping create a North American footprint and significantly grow the size of the company during his tenure. Schwab will continue his professional relationship with Praeses as a consultant going forward. Frank Auer, CEO and General Manager of Praeses said, “We are grateful for the contributions and leadership Kempton has provided the organization for more than two decades.”

Rosen joins the organization following a successful career with k Technology, serving most recently as its General Manager and as Senior Vice President of its parent division, Thermacore. Adam led k Technology through significant growth since its founding.

“Praeses is thrilled to have Adam join the company to help lead its growth efforts in the correctional services, and government and commercial sectors. In addition to his exceptional track record growing and leading organizations, Adam is a strong cultural fit within the company and truly represents its core values,” said Auer.
